The Effects of Cycling.
The effect of cycling on the upper extremity of the arm and forearm is to slightly bend the hand, the deformity taking place in the arm bone and in the fingers, and to bring about an unnatural curve of the shoulders. On the lower limbs cycling tells as markedly as it does on the spine, and, as the lower limbs perform the greater part of the work, they usually feel the effects of it most distinctly. Riding brings out and exaggerates any deformity, however slight. The pelvis of the rider, now practically a part of the machine, is fixed to it, and is almost as rigid as itself. In this position of things the thigh bone is closed under unusual strain. The large muscles in the fore part of the thigh are employed in extending or lifting up the leg at great disadvantage of leverage. What the strain is on these muscles every young cyclist knows to his cost, and it is not until they get a kind of extra natural power that riding is easy.—Dr. R. W. Richardson in Asclepiad.

Church Bells in Chicago.

There are more church bells on the west side than in any of the other divisions. There are fewer on the north side. The west side churches indicate the habits of its grandfathers, who never started for church until he heard the first bell ring, no matter if his watch or clock indicated that the sexton was wrong. There are few church bells sold in Chicago now. The new style of church architecture leaves the city devoid of the stately or copious except for ornamental purposes, and the ultra style of church architecture does not have any at all.

In the good old days the man who rang the church bell was a character. But there isn't much to the ringing of today that makes him known to any except the vestry who fixes his pay.—Chicago Tribune.

The Science of Physiology.

The study of physiology in common schools has its undoubted advantages, but some of the answers on examination days, when teacher and pupils are alike anxious, throw a lurid light on the path of science. Johnny, a member of a school with which I am familiar, had replied with much courage and some accuracy to inquiries about various portions of the human frame. At last the overhopeful teacher propounded this apparently innocent question: "How long is the esophagus, Johnny?" With no hesitation and with a measuring glance of the eye Johnny answered loudly: "Twenty-eight feet!"—Christian Union.

An Old Adage Knocked Out.

The late Richard Beebe, of West Springfield, once attempted to refute the saying, "You can't make a whistle out of a pig's tail," and not only made one, but two whistles, which, although seventy-eight years old, still make a respectable noise. George A. Hill has these curious relics, and the pigskin has become so hard that it requires mauling to make the music mellow.—Springfield Republican.

Gen. Alger at the close of the war landed in Detroit without a cent, and had to borrow money to pay his board. At present he owns two hundred square miles of pine land in Michigan and is reputed to be worth $20,000,000.

Miss Isabella Smith, the private secretary of Labor Commissioner McCrever, has been accused of the work of gathering statistics concerning the women and girl operatives in the furniture of Missouri.

AMERICAN FABLES.

THE GOOSE AND THE DUCK.

A goose who was sunning himself on a bank was much put out by the important airs assumed by a Duck, and finally observed:
"Thank Heaven that I wasn't born with such a Waddle as you've got."
"Nor with my Good Looks, either!" retorted the Duck.
"Bah! your Colors fade in the Wash!" "Your Voice is Cracked!"
"It is, eh! Let us go to the Gobbler and settle this matter. We will ask him to decide between us."

When the Gobbler had looked them both over and heard each one Sing, he picked his teeth with a Straw, looked very Wise for a time, and then said:
"Well, now, but up to this moment I had credited both of you with good Looks and Common Sense. Now that you particularly draw my Attention to yourselves I find you both so Homely that it makes my head ache, and I am amazed that either of you has Wit enough to keep your head Above Water."

Moral—One's Broken Nose never looks so bad until you brag of its Symmetry.

THE MAGPIE AND THE TRAVELERS.

One day as a Magpie had taken a seat on a Limb of a tree near the Highway two Travelers came along and halted under the tree to rest. They soon observed the Bird, and, never having seen one of its Species before, one of them called out:
"Behold the Eagle! What a noble Bird!"
"How Beautiful! How Grand!" added the other.

Filled with Conceit, the Magpie began to chatter her satisfaction at these words, but she had scarcely opened her Mouth when one of the travelers exclaimed:
"What Fools we are! I know from what I have read that this Bird is only a Common Magpie!"

"And let her Begone!" added his friend, as he picked up a stone and sent it Whizzing at her head.

Moral—A Crow, who had heard and seen all without being Noticed himself, now scratched his Ear and murmured:
"If some Folks would only keep their Mouths shut what Credit they might get for what they don't know!"—Detroit Free Press.

Smokey—Git away from here, you-wought!—Judge.

"M. P." sends us an item clipped from a New York paper stating that we have killed fourteen men and been wounded eight times, and he asks if it is true. No, sir. It's a base exaggeration. We have been under the painful necessity of checking off the accounts of our of our fellow beings and have been hit twice. That's all, and we haven't even got the reputation yet of being a dangerous man. Don't believe all you see in the papers.—Arizona.
